Who we are

Lives Lived Well is a leading, non-government organisation for people who are experiencing difficulties with their use of alcohol and other drugs or mental health. We believe in providing the support you need in a way that works for you: individual counselling in person or by phone, group programs, withdrawal support, short or long stay rehabilitation, outreach services in your home or school. When people are ready, we are there with the tools, time and expertise to support them.

How we can help

We offer a range of professional and confidential alcohol and drug treatment programs and mental health services. Most of our services are free and you don’t need a referral. We believe in turning hope into reality and creating positive change to see that lives are lived well.

For advice, call us on 1300 727 957 and we will talk to you about the outcomes you are looking for and how we can best help you.

Who we support

We work with people of all ages and backgrounds. We respect that people have different needs so we also offer specialised programs.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders – We work with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people to overcome drug and alcohol problems and bring about a sense of wellbeing. We bring cultural understanding and respect to our counselling services and provide support for families and friends.

Young people – Most young people will experiment with drugs or alcohol at some stage. For some, drinking or drug taking can become a problem. Our staff are specifically trained and experienced to support young people who feel they need to get back on track. Also available are specialist programs for young families and those with children.

Community re-entry – We provide specialist programs to people leaving correctional facilities to support successful transition back to the community.

Families – When someone you care about has a problem with alcohol or drugs it can be overwhelming. We have a range of family therapy and support groups that can provide information and tools to better support families with a loved one dealing with drug or alcohol.
